

Question

- Which of the following methodological procedures can cause moral conflicts to arise?
 - A) Invasion of privacy
 - B) deception
 - C) withholding information from research participants
 - D) all of the above

Question

- Deliberately withholding information from research participants is called; deliberately misinforming participants is called
 - A) active deception; passive deception
 - B) active deception; double deception
 - C) double deception; passive deception
 - D) passive deception; active deception

Question

- In the Milgram experiments, which of the following actually received electrical shocks?
 - A) the "teacher"
 - B) the "learner"
 - C) both A and B
 - D) neither A nor B

Question

- Ethical questions were raised about the Milgram experiments because
 - A) participants were deceived and apparently stressed
 - B) some participants received severe shocks
 - C) some participants were physically injured
 - D) all of the above

Question

- Research at all colleges and universities has to be approved by
 - A) the president of the institution
 - B) the government
 - C) professors in psychology
 - D) an IRB (insan arastirmalari etik kurulu)

Question

- The procedure of disclosing the full purpose of a study after individuals have participated is called
 - A) debriefing
 - B) peer review
 - C) the Milgram procedure
 - D) double deception

Discussion Question

- A university student is interested in studying in helping behavior. She designs an experiment to take place in a corner drugstore. The owner is agreed to help to the student. The student has a confederate who commits a robbery at the store. Another confederate observes the real consumers' reaction to robbery. What are some ethical problems in this research? What are the risks and benefits? If you were a member an IRB, would you approve this research?

Discussion Question

- A student want to run a study in which he will deceive subjects into believing that they have done poorly on a test of their sensitivity to others. At the end of the experimental session, he plans to pay the subjects, thank them for participating, and tell them they can call him later if they have questions about the study. What are some ethical problems in this research?

Discussion Question

- An instructor tells her students that have ethical responsibilities when writing up their research? What are those responsibilities?